Overview

Hydes supports gender equality and is able to state that people in similar roles are definitively paid comparable rates. The company recognises the importance of positive senior role models and 30% of the senior Head Office team are women.

Recruitment

Our most senior roles outside of Head Office are General Managers of pub sites and Head Chefs in dining sites.

We continue to have a growing number of women appointed into General Manager, Deputy Manager and Kitchen Manager positions. One third of our General Managers are female with several operating within Hydes' largest sites. Many of these appointments have arisen through internal progression which had been underpinned with structured coaching and secondment opportunities.

We also continue to advertise widely when recruiting for senior roles and have seen an increase in female applicants. Furthermore we continue to see an increase in external female applicants for management positions and indeed more females applying for promotion and places on our internal coaching programmes.

Ways of working

The Company offers flexible contracts and also guaranteed minimum incomes - which appeal to an extensive range of applicants. We are open to other flexible ways of working and have hybrid formats in place where possible.

In Winter 2021 the Company also set up a focus group ( for Equality, Diversity and Inclusion) with members from across the business, to review relevant topics and make appropriate changes to ways of working and policy.

In June 2022, Hydes committed to the Equality, Diversity and Inclusion Charter launched by the industry body the British Beer and Pubs Association.

Opportunities for development

Hydes has further expanded its support teams for training and has made a commitment to support NVQs throughout the business. These NVQs are open to everyone and are provided through a flexible framework which combines work-based training with workshops and on site coaching. We believe this is an inclusive approach, making the training available to a broad range of employees.

Hydes has also expanded its focus on leadership coaching, serving to create and sustain strong inclusive cultures.
